MARK O. FISCHER
General Manager
Kimpton's Hotel Palomar Atlanta

Mark Fischer is general manager of Kimpton's Hotel Palomar Atlanta, responsible for all daily operations of the hotel. Fischer will focus on integrating Hotel Palomar Atlanta, Kimpton's first hotel in the market, into the bustling midtown Atlanta community and bringing to life Kimpton's most iconic guest experiences, from the "Guppy Love" goldfish program that provides guests with a goldfish companion upon check-in to the hosted evening Wine Hour that offers guests a chance to indulge in the art of conversation while tasting wines from around the world.

Part of the Kimpton team for more than six years, Fischer joined Kimpton in 2003 as assistant general manager of the Hotel Marlowe in Cambridge, Mass., where he played a key role in the opening of the 238-room hotel. Later that year, Fischer was promoted to general manager of Kimpton's 112-room Onyx Hotel in Boston where he was responsible for the ground-up opening of the hotel and managed all day-to-day operations. Under Fischer's guidance, the Onyx earned the AAA Four Diamond Award six years in a row.

Prior to joining Kimpton, Fischer served as rooms division manager at the Royalton Hotel and as hotel manager at the Chambers Hotel, both in New York. He began his career at the Four Seasons Palm Beach, where he worked for almost 10 years and held several management roles including front office manager, sales manager, housekeeping manager and guest services manager.

Fischer holds a bachelor's degree in Hotel Management from University of Florida. He is relocating to Atlanta with his wife and two children.
